

Humanities Education and Research Association's 2011 Conference

Spring, 2011 - San Francisco, California

Transformations

March 3 to 5, 2011 at Hotel Whitcomb

HERA (Humanities Education and Research Association) is exploring Transformations that occur in four groupings or "streams"; transformative Humanities pedagogy, Humanities research, creative contributions, and making the most of this transformative moment.

Transformative Humanities Pedagogy highlights Humanities teaching at all levels, engaged learning, and teaching to transform

Transformative Humanities Research includes Humanities research in many disciplines including but not limited to Architecture, Art, Art History, Aesthetics, Classics, Composition, Dance, Design, Film Studies, History, Literature, Media, Museum Studies, Music, Music Theater, Philosophy, Religion and Theater, Humanities research in many different areas including but not limited to Globalization, Sexuality, Gender, Family, Technology, Ethnic studies, the Environment, and Sustainability studies.

Transformative Creative Contributions include active Humanities contributions through workshops, performances, and discussion groups.

Making the Most of this Transformative Moment explores using the Humanities, including Humanities Education and Research, in ways that avoid pitfalls like cynicism and embrace qualities like optimism and courage as we use our power to make the most of this transformative moment.

Go to HERA's website at www.h-e-r-a.org for more information about the conference as well as panel and paper proposals. HERA welcomes papers from academics, museum directors, independent scholars, and graduate students. Paper proposals due by December 30, 2010.

The historic Hotel Whitcomb is offering HERA conference attendees a transformative deal: $79 per night. This rate is good three days before and three days after the conference allowing attendees to get the most out of their San Francisco experience. All reservations must be made directly through the hotel by calling 415-626-8000.
